

Sign Up to Participate and Receive a $75 Gift Card!

MI-DDI is Recruiting Families to Participate in a Project that Helps Train Future Medical Professionals on Family-Centered Practices!

ARIE Co-Curricular Project

The Michigan Developmental Disabilities Institute (MI-DDI) is collaborating with the Wayne State University School of Medicine to train medical students to improve their ability to understand the unique needs of families who have children with disabilities. Your family will help prepare the professional physicians of tomorrow!

Requirements

To participate, you must:

- Have a child with a disability under the age of 26
- Partake in 45-minute to 1-hour virtual or in-person home meetings for each home
 - Medical students will provide two virtual or in-person home visits with your family

Compensation

For your participation, you will receive:

- A $75 stipend for participating
- A confidential family quality of life assessment
- Information about resources to assist your family
- A small gift for your child for participating

Interested in Participating?

If your family is interested in participating, please complete the interest form by clicking the link below:

ARIE Project - Interest Form

You can also express your interest by contacting the following person via email:

Nia Anderson, LMSW

Email: cp8512@wayne.edu

*In your message, please include your name, address, telephone number, email address and the age of your child. *